

PACC – The Pro Athlete and Business Network Officially Launches DC Chapter with Kickoff Event on February 11

Organization connects current and former athletes and business professionals

Washington, DC (February 8, 2016) - PACC – The Pro Athlete and Business Network, a membership-based business networking organization, is proud to announce its expansion to the DC area. Founded by former NFL player John Bronson, the organization connects current and former athletes with business professionals so everyone can achieve their business goals. PACC DC's official launch party will be held on February 11, 6-8:30pm at the City Club in Washington, DC.

Over the last decade, Bronson has founded and been involved with a number of business endeavors. He and his team created the PACC Pro Athlete and Business Network to be a one-stop shop for athletes trying to transition to the business world as well as for those in the business community looking to leverage athlete branding into their business plan.

“What PACC offers connection in a vetted environment which is key for our members” said Bronson. “So many previous athlete/non-athlete business dealings turn sour because there is no vetting process and the athletes themselves have never trained for that. PACC handles all of that for them. PACC also works with our business members to ensure that we are introducing them to athletes that will best help them reach their business goals.”

Former NFL player Larry Stevens Jr. will lead PACC DC. A limited number of tickets are still available for the local launch. For ticket information and for additional organization information please visit www.paccpronetwork.com.

In addition to DC, the PACC has locations in Phoenix, San Francisco and Atlanta. The organization plans expansion additional cities including Seattle, Baltimore, Chicago and Tampa Bay.
